FOREWORD

About nineteen hundred and twelve years ago, when God's sorrowing mother, accompanied by St. John, His devoted apostle, stood at the foot of a cross on a hill called Calvary, she heard from the dying lips of her Child: "Son, behold thy Mother; Mother behold thy son." With these words Christ gave Mary to each of us as our Mother, and as such she offers to us her help in the struggle against the temptations of the world, the flesh and the devil. When we, of the class of '45, chose "Living the Year With Mary" as the theme of our annual, we hoped that each person who reads it will become more closely united to Mary, the Mother of God, and that through her, each might belong to Jesus Christ in a more nearly perfect manner.

As you turn the pages and view the drawings which depict twelve of the most important feasts celebrated in honor of Mary's beautiful life, may you be imbued with the spirit of loving sacrifice and implicit obedience which she so completely possessed.

The pictures are accompanied by stories explaining the history of the events portrayed. They represent much research and hard work on the part of twelve seniors whose purpose it was to acquaint the readers of this book with a few facts in the course of Mary's life.

True proof of the fact that the students of Catholic Central really do try to adhere to this theme lies in the evidence of their constant devotion to our Blessed Mother. The fighting spirit of our athletes is tempered with humble petitions for her aid. Never a football day dawns without the inspiring sight of a group of husky boys receiving Communion. Prior to their games, these same young men kneel with bowed heads on the steps of the Cathedral and then return muddy, tired, and lame, whether victorious or defeated, to silently acknowledge her protection. On the basketball court, our hearts are gladdened by the five boys in our beloved blue and white with heads bowed, hands clasped, and lips moving silently in a fervent "Hail Mary."

The lives of 225 of our girls are enriched because of their association with "Mary's Guard of Honor."

We are indebted to James Stachowiak, a senior, for his beautiful portrayal of the Immaculate Conception shown on the cover of the '45 Spire, and also for the image of Mary on page 2; and to Robert Poterack, a sophomore, for the long hours he had expended in sketching the twelve illustrations depicting the feasts of our Blessed Mother mentioned herein.

OUR SHEPHERD

If a sheep who is caught in prickly brambles, through the aid of his kind shepherd finds his way back into the fold, so may troubled youth, lost in the fury of a war-torn world, find in the leadership of a true shepherd of God, renewed faith, and a clear conception of the ideals of Christianity.

In our beloved bishop, Francis J. Haas, we find a spiritual leader who is a true Apostle of Christ; for his life is dedicated to the service of God and to the welfare of his fellow man. His deep faith, his clear conception of justice, his spontaneous charity, are unmistakable characteristics of his priestly nature.

The words "Justice in Christ" embellished on his coat-of-arms, serve as a guide in the enactment of his Apostolic duties. In his Justice, Bishop Haas saw the urgent need for an enlarged Catholic Central, in order that all Catholic youths might gain an education based on Christian principles. His love and generosity manifested in his care for souls will affect us much good throughout our lives; for in his Charity, he undertook the tremendous task of directing a High School Development Fund campaign to obtain sufficient funds for the construction of a new, modern Catholic high school. Each individual in his diocese, contributed his share by a material or spiritual offering, so that the doctrines of Christ shall be taught forever in the study halls of our Alma Mater.

As seniors, confident of the future, and secure in the knowledge and the truths of our Belief, we leave these sacred portals. We are grateful that our posterity shall reap the benefits of a Catholic education — in time, and in eternity.

For the thousands of students, who will follow the graduating class of 1945, to carry Christ's banner over the pathways of the earth, may I express my appreciation to His Excellency Bishop Haas for the sincere interest which he has shown "for our tomorrow."

DEDICATION

"Going, therefore, teach ye all nations, . . . teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and behold, I am with you to the consummation of the world." Thus spoke Our Lord to His chosen Apostles when He commissioned them to point out the way to His Eternal Home — — Heaven.

A priest of God — an ambassador of Jesus Christ — such was the title bestowed upon you, Rev. Father Heyer, when you were chosen from the midst of thousands to follow in the footsteps of Our Lord and to spread His divine mission among mankind. What a noble mission! What essential duties! What an important dignity!

Commissioned to teach the truths of Christ's religion, you are daily by your good example, prayer, and sacrifices leading men ever upward to the eternal gates of heaven.

It was fortunate for the Senior boys to have you as their class adviser and teacher during their last year at Catholic Central. From you they have learned to face the future with trust and confidence in Almighty God.

Because it cannot be expressed in words, their gratitude to you will remain in their hearts. Your kind efforts, ever helpful advice, and the untiring interest which you have taken in the Senior class will be treasured and remembered, forever.

As a small expression of their appreciation, the Class of 1945 is proud to dedicate THE SPIRES to you, Rev. Robert Heyer, as teacher, Senior class adviser, and vice-principal of Catholic Central.

Rev. Thomas J. Bolger, Principal

Dear Father Bolger:

We, the students of Catholic Central, wish to thank you for your kindness and understanding justice during the past school-year.

You undertook your new office as principal with a quiet dignity; and although the spiritual and temporal welfare of almost a thousand students was placed in your charge, you accepted all as the will of God.

With unfailing foresightedness, you guided and helped each one of us, directly or indirectly, on our rocky road of life. The fruit of your labors can be seen in the fact that Catholic Central continues to be one of the foremost high schools in Grand Rapids.

TRIBUTE

To you, Reverend Fathers, we, the Senior Class of '45, give thanks for your untiring and unceasing efforts to educate and to prepare us for the future. To us you really are the messengers of God and the dispensers of His mysteries. You have played the important role as mediators of Christ in conveying the all-important eternal truths. We are more thankful than words can express.

Venerable Sisters, whose lives have been an example and an inspiration to higher and nobler things, we feel that we cannot better prove our gratitude to you than by endeavoring to daily practice the precepts which you have so earnestly taught. Your patience in dealing with our youthful lives, your kindness in bestowing good advice, and your unselfish sacrifices of time and talents will ever be as beacon lights guiding us on to paths of duty and virtue in this life and to everlasting happiness in the next.

Members of the Lay Faculty at Catholic Central, we extend to you our deepest gratitude. In the years to come, we shall remember you and thank you for your assistance and guidance in helping us keep apace on the road to success.

Last but not least, dear parents, you merit lasting praise for the endless number of sacrifices which you have made for us so that we could acquire an education founded on Catholic principles. Your stimulating words of encouragement have led us to the goal we have now reached. We praise and thank you for your tireless efforts, and we shall cherish in the future the Christian way of life-and-living that you made possible for us through a Catholic education.

MAY GOD BLESS YOU, ALWAYS!

The Nativity of Mary

"Thy nativity, O Virgin Mother of God was the herald of joy to the whole world; since from thee arose the Sun of Justice, Christ our God, Who destroying the curse, bestowed the blessing, and, confounding death, gifted us with life everlasting." (Ant. at the Magnificat)

MATER DEI

*A Flower so rare, and a Virgin so fair,
Was Mary, the Mother of God;
So radiant bright — a Star in the night —
An "Innocent" born on our sod.*

*Conceived without stain, 'twas God's work
again,
A lily as white as the snow;
God guarded Her here, and there always were near
Her, the angels wherever She'd go.*

*A Flower so rare, and a Virgin so fair,
A rose of our own earthly sod;
A pure white dove, a Virgin of love
Is Mary, the Mother of God.*

—Richard Guidotti, '45

Feast of the Nativity of Mary (September 8)

"Oh, blessed Virgin, thou art born to procure the salvation of the whole world."
St. John Damascene.

Two holy persons, Joachim and Anna, lived in the little town of Nazareth in Lower Galilee. Joachim was of the Tribe of Juda; his wife, Anna, was of the priestly tribe of Aaron. One great blessing was wanting to their married life; they were without children.

After twenty years of prayer, sacrifice and alms deeds, a great miracle took place. God gave them a daughter more perfect, more holy, more pleasing in His sight, than all the elect put together.

According to Barónius, Mary was born at daybreak, on a Saturday, in the year of the creation of the world 4007, fifteen years before the birth of Christ. Her birth, like that of her Divine Son, was silent and unknown. When Anna had brought forth her child, she said to God, "O Lord, I have brought a daughter into the world; I have named her Miriam (Mary), I place her under Thy protection, her and her posterity, that Thou mayest preserve them from the artifices of Satan." (The Koran, Ch. 3.) In the Syriac language Miriam meant LADY or SOVEREIGN MISTRESS; and in Hebrew, STAR OF THE SEA.

The cradle of the Queen of Angels was composed of flexible twigs; for her parents, though royally descended, were poor. Swathing bands of coarse linen compressed the little arms which were destined to nurse so tenderly the Savior of the world. Over that cradle, Angels and Archangels must have bent with reverence, and on that tiny babe, the Blessed Trinity must have looked with infinite delight; for never was a creature so lovely. From the very moment of her conception, God dwelt in Mary as in a heavenly tabernacle because her soul was spotless and holy.

Mary was so showered with graces, that had she been born immediately after her most pure conception, she would have come into the world richer in merits, and more holy than all the saints united.

Thus, we celebrate September 8, the birth of Mary, with universal praise and thanksgiving; for when Mary was born, we received our consolation and our salvation because through Mary we have received our Savior. Thanks be to God for having created this most beautiful of all creatures and for having given her to us as a Mother!

On September 22, the Cougars' '44 football season began with a thrilling, hard-fought game, against Muskegon, that ended 13-7, in favor of the Reds.

Two weeks later, a pair of last minute touchdowns gave Catholic a 19-13 victory over the fighting Creston Polar Bears.

Ottawa came next. Rated as an underdog before the game, they amazed sports-fans by defeating the fighting Cougars 13-7.

Playing what was probably their best game of the season, Catholic's Cougars bowed down before the mighty South High Trojans 21 to 0.

When they met the Central hill-toppers on Saturday, October 28, the Sheldon Avenue boys had to be content with a 12 to 12 tie.

Promises of Mary, Queen of the Rosary (To St. Dominic and Blessed Alan)

"Thou art all fair, O Mary, and there is in thee no stain of original sin."

—(Song of Sol. IV:7)

- *1. Whoever will faithfully serve me by the recitation of the Rosary shall receive signal graces.
2. To all who recite my Rosary devoutly, I promise my special protection and very great graces.
3. The Rosary will be very powerful armor against hell. It will destroy vice, deliver from sin, and dispel heresy.
4. The Rosary will make virtue and good works flourish, and will obtain for souls the most abundant divine mercies; it will substitute in hearts love of God for love of the world, elevate them to desire heavenly and eternal goods. Oh, that souls would sanctify themselves by this means!
5. Those who trust themselves to me through the Rosary will not perish.
6. Those who shall recite my Rosary piously, considering its mysteries, will not be overwhelmed by misfortune, nor die a bad death. The sinner will be converted, the just will grow in grace and become worthy of eternal life.
7. Whoever will have a true devotion for the Rosary shall not die without the Sacraments of the Church.
8. Those who faithfully recite the Rosary shall have during their life and at their death the light of God and the plenitude of His graces; at the moment of death they shall participate in the merits of the saints in paradise.
9. I will deliver very promptly from purgatory the souls devoted to my Rosary.
10. The true children of my Rosary will enjoy great glory in heaven.
11. What you shall ask through the Rosary you shall obtain.
12. Those who propagate my Rosary will obtain through me aid in all their necessities.
13. I have obtained from my Son that all the members of the Rosary Confraternity shall have the saints of heaven for their intercessors in life and in death.
14. Those who recite my Rosary faithfully are all my beloved children, the brothers and sisters of Jesus Christ.
15. Devotion to my Rosary is a special sign of predestination.

*From the writings of Blessed Alan de Rupe.

Our Lady, Queen of the Holy Rosary (Feast October 7)

Historians tell us that since the days of Ninive, people have used mechanical devices for counting prayers. The Egyptians had prayer-boards to tell off orisons to their gods. In the fifth century, St. Brigid of Ireland used variformed pebbles for counting her "Pater Nosters," as did the Hindus 2,000 years before her. The Mohammedans fingered their bead-string of thirty-three to Allah. However, it was not until the middle of the twelfth century that the "Hail Mary" came into common use as a formula of devotion, and the old custom of using strings of beads to count prayers was discontinued.

The world owes thanks to the Queen of Heaven and to St. Dominic for the glorious birth of the Rosary. To each and every Catholic, the feast of the Holy Rosary bears a special significance; for it marks the regeneration of the world by God through the medium of His Immaculate Mother by means of her Rosary.

About the thirteenth century, the Christians were threatened to be wiped off the face of Europe by a powerful and irreligious race of people called the Albigenses. This race pillaged the Church, devastated the monasteries, murdered the religious, and desecrated the sanctuaries of God. In about 1208, when the very last traces of Christianity seemed obliterated in the East and the Far West, the Mother of God appeared to Dominic in the chapel of Notre Dame, at Prouille, France and presented to him her gift. Holding a Rosary in her outstretched hands, she appeared in heavenly beauty to her pleading intercessor addressing him thus: "Be of good courage, Dominic, the fruits of your labor shall be abundant. The remedy for the evil you lament will be meditation on the life, death, and glory of my Son; uniting these with the recitation of the 'Angelic Salutation' by which the mystery of the Redemption was announced to the world." At the command of the Blessed Lady, St. Dominic spread this new devotion to the people.

Instructed by Dominic, their leader, the Christian army and its followers recited the Rosary for many days before the crucial battle of Muret in 1213. As a result of the constant repetition of this beautiful devotion, the Albigensian heresy shrivelled in the presence of the people's proclamation. That incident marked the first universal victory over the enemies of Christianity.

The second mighty Rosary victory came in 1571 at the Battle of Lepanto when the Spanish fleet drove the Mohammedans from Europe. Again, the people, under the leadership of Pope St. Pius V, gathered to recite the Rosary to bring success to the Christian forces. Don John of Austria was commander of the Christian fleet furnished by Venice, Genoa and Spain. After receiving Holy Communion and Apostolic Benediction, Don John's sixty-five thousand men unceasingly recited the Rosary for three hours. The attack was made, and the Christians won. They attributed this great naval triumph to the recitation of the Rosary.

Another miraculous event associated with the Rosary occurred in Lourdes, France, in 1858 when the Blessed Virgin appeared to a little peasant girl, Bernadette Soubiroux, and told her to spread the practice of saying the Rosary.

Our Blessed Mother, Queen of the Holy Rosary, appeared in 1884 to Fortuna Agrelli, a sick girl in Pompeii, Italy and told her that she was pleased to be called "Queen of the Holy Rosary," and that if she desired a favor from her, she should make three novenas of the prayers of the Rosary in petition, and thrice in thanksgiving. Fortuna did as commanded and was cured of her fatal malady.

During World War I, Our Lady appeared to three shepherd children near Fatima, Portugal with a Rosary of pearls in her hands. She commanded them to say it in her honor for world peace.

These instances of the endless power of the Rosary are outstanding, but there are other countless miracles known only to the individuals who experience them at her famous Rosary sanctuaries in Lourdes, France; Fatima, Spain; Guadalupe, Mexico, and, in fact, in our private homes.

"If you desire peace in your hearts, your homes, and your country, assemble every evening to recite the Rosary." (Pius XI)

Election Day

Election

Amid band-music, cheers, and claims of rival speeches, the senior election-campaign officially got under way October 5. The "drag" was decorated with posters, signs and stickers.

Parades were staged, and friendly rivalry was apparent between the "political" parties. A majority of the student-body joined in the fun and frolic.

After four days of furious and anxious speeches and promises, William Feutz was chosen president; Mary Margaret Platte, vice-president; Graham McDonnell, treasurer, and Florence Soltys, secretary.

The enthusiastic voters were well pleased with the executive council to lead the class of '45 on to bigger and better things for the duration of the school year.

Blue and White

"You are my voice; few would be the children of the common father who would learn my wishes without the aid of the Catholic Press." Pope Pius XI.

It has been the policy of the Blue and White to maintain a high standard of writing by publishing in its columns excellently written editorials. The encouraging criticisms received from the Catholic School Press association verify the fact by submitting to the adviser of the Blue and White the following commendation:

"The Blue and White editorial leadership indicates that the staff realizes its duty as the mouthpiece of Catholic action. The editorials are excellently written and should be commended for their fine Catholic tone . . . Keep emphasizing the things of real value; that is the principal job of the Blue and White, and its editors are performing it admirably."

AN OFFERING TO GOD

*Oh! such a gift, a lily fair
Offered with loving sorrow and care
A speck of joy and yet of sorrow
A lily so pure for our tomorrow.*

*The grief was great in St. Ann's heart
To give her child and then to depart.
St. Joachim, too, with tender love
Offered his daughter to God above.*

*And then today remember still
The sorrow which Mary's heart doth fill
At leaving her mother, and leaving her dad
At leaving them happy, yet leaving them sad.*

The Feast of the Presentation of Mary in the Temple (November 21)

From the time that man lost eternal happiness as a result of Adam and Eve's sin in Paradise, the Hebrews believed that a woman chosen by God would give birth to a Redeemer who would re-open to them the Gates of Heaven. Ann, a holy woman married to Joachim, prayed that she might be the mother of the Savior; but, to her sorrow, she remained childless for twenty years of her married life. Suddenly, by a miracle, a child was conceived in the womb of Ann. The baby born to her was a girl instead of a boy; nevertheless, in her happiness, Ann promised to offer her beloved daughter, whom she named Mary, to God.

When Mary had reached the age of three, her parents decided that the time had come for them to fulfill their promise. So they planned to take their only child to the Temple in Jerusalem. Mary was grieved at the thought of leaving her devoted parents behind, but she was supremely happy in knowing that she would be nearer to her Creator. After bidding a fond farewell to her mother and father, little Mary joined her new friends who were unaware that in their midst was the Virgin of all virgins, the Queen of all queens, the Mother of all mothers, and the GREATEST SAINT the world would ever know.

The Presentation of Mary in the Temple is celebrated by the Church on November 21. On this day, the faithful are reminded of the great sacrifice Joachim and Ann made by offering their beloved and only child to serve in the Temple of the Lord. After leaving her parents, her friends, and all her little girlish desires, to prove her love and devotion to her Maker, Mary gave herself entirely to God. On this day she also made a vow of virginity.

Mary began each day in the Temple by whispering fervent prayers. During the day, she made beautiful tapestries, wove garments for the priests, and learned many household duties. She also learned the ancient Hebrew language perfectly, and studied Holy Scripture, thoroughly. Together with her stainless heart and soul, Mary offered all her acts to God. Daily she renewed her vow of virginity, and often asked God to help her become more perfect.

The Blessed Virgin is an example of perfect humility and charity. She was ever faithful in her services to God, and kept frequent vigils in His honor. Her happy smile seemed to be accompanied by the songs of Angels, and her virtuous life had a great influence on all her associates.

Since the Presentation of Mary in the Temple, she has been a shining example to all mankind.

NOVEMBER ACTIVITIES

Gala-Nite + Initiation

Astounding results are realized by whole-hearted cooperation! Over $2,000 was netted by the band from Gala-Nite activities. A variety of booths, fun-houses, game-centers, and lunch counters highlighted the occasion on November 19.

The Varsity Club sponsored a patriotic affair on November 23. Twenty-four lettermen, clad in white, with crimson lipstick and blue bruises covering various portions of their anatomies, were put through the rigors of their annual initiation.

Homecoming Dance

Social events at Catholic Central began with the annual Homecoming Dance held this year on November 25. Charming Lorraine Gerke made an exquisite QUEEN, and her coronation by the king, debonair Don O'Hearn, was the highlight of the evening. Miss Gerke was attended by her two maids, Virginia Hoy and Arlene Zackerzecki, and in the court were: Alice Suchowles, Sally Walsh, Mary Ann Burns, Mary Ellen Miklas, Ursula Powell, Joan Bohr, Bernadette Bladey, and Jeanne Roosien. At the head of the committee were Jack Moriarity and Sally Walsh.

The Immaculate Conception

A MYSTERY OF LOVE

*A mystery!
A masterpiece of Godly skill;
Yes, wrought by God's all powerful will.*

*Such purity —
Virginity!
Conceived; but yet remaining still
A Virgin at God's holy will.*

*Such Sanctity!
A mystery
That holds within its golden gate
A secret now fulfilled by time.
The secret of a Virgin fair,
Who would fulfill the devil's fate,
And crush his head into the slime.
A mystery of love so rare.*

—Richard Guidotti, '45

*"All generations shall call me blessed;
because He who is powerful hath done
great things in me."*

—(Luke 1:48)

"Thou art all fair, O Mary, and there is in thee no stain of original sin."

—(Song of Sol. IV:7)

MOTHER IMMACULATE

*Mother Immaculate, hear our cries,
Counsel us, and calm our sighs;
Give us help, we beg of Thee,
Mother Immaculate, Star of the Sea!*

The Feast of the Immaculate Conception (December 8)

"In Thy conception O Virgin Mary, thou wast immaculate; pray for us to the Father, Whose Son Jesus, conceived in thy womb by the Holy Ghost, thou didst bring forth." God the Father desired that the dwelling-place of His divine Son be free from all stain. For this reason, He provided that from the instant of her conception, Mary's soul was perfectly pure and radiant with His choicest graces.

As far back as the fifth century, many countries observed the feast of the Immaculate Conception, and a great number of the popes favored the belief in Mary's miraculous preservation from original sin. It was not until 1476, however, that Pope Sixtus IV raised the Immaculate Conception to the dignity of a feast. In 1846 the bishops of the United States assembled in Plenary Council in Baltimore, Maryland, and chose Mary under the title of the "Immaculate Conception," as Patroness of the United States.

At last on December 8, 1854, Pope Pius IX gave the world cause for joy. Having consulted with two hundred bishops from every part of the Catholic world, he officially proclaimed the feast of the Immaculate Conception a holy-day of obligation. Thus the time-honored and pious belief of all Catholics was raised to the dignity of a definite article of faith. No doubt, the angels and saints in heaven must have rejoiced with Mary on this great day, and they probably hailed her as the purest of lilies in God's garden.

Four years later, Mary manifested her joy at having been given this title of the Immaculate Conception. Ever simple and poor in spirit, she appeared to a little peasant girl, Bernadette Soubiroux in Lourdes, a small town in France. The poverty of the Soubiroux family was so extreme that the source of their next meal was always a problem, and their very home was an abandoned prison. Nevertheless, Bernadette had found favor with God and Our Blessed Mother, and so she was chosen to behold this beatific vision.

Mary appeared to Bernadette several times, and each time was more beautiful in the eyes of the innocent child. Because of the promptings of the people of Lourdes, and because of the many inquiries as to who this beautiful Lady was, Bernadette became very much troubled. During one of the eighteen apparitions, our Lady smiled lovingly at the little peasant girl and in answer to Bernadette's unspoken inquiry, Mary introduced herself thus: "I am the Immaculate Conception."

The picture of the Immaculate Conception is full of meaning. Each part of the illustration has its own significance, and each teaches its own lesson. We find Mary standing on a globe. This signifies that being human, she belongs to the earth; but being destined from all eternity to be the Mother of God, she had risen above the world and sin by trampling underfoot all earthly vanities and possessions. The serpent with an apple in his mouth is coiled around the earth to symbolize Satan, who lured Adam and Eve to eat of the forbidden fruit. By placing Mary's foot on the serpent's head, the artist tried to prove to the faithful followers of Our Blessed Mother that she was never under the domination of Lucifer. The half-moon, the sign of inconstancy, is also at her feet. This signifies that we must be constant in faith and virtue. The crown of twelve stars about Mary's head is a symbol of her royal descent. Each star represents a respective tribe as follows: Manasses, Aser, Jacob, Ruben, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Issachar, Zabulon, Benjamin, Nethtali, and Gad.

Since Mary's soul was never tainted by sin, she is dressed in a white robe — the symbol of purity. Blue, the color of her mantle, represents her humility. Her outstretched arms with fingers pointing downward, depict the idea that she's ever ready to shower heavenly graces upon those, living upon this earth, who have recourse to her.

"O Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee."

DECEMBER ACTIVITIES

A Happy White Christmas

"I'm dreaming of a White Christmas," was the tune that chimed throughout the halls of C. C. One day the dream came true when fluffy flakes came tumbling out of the heavens covering the whole campus with a blanket of snow. Students found great pleasure in romping through the snow-drifts during the long white winter that lasted from November to March. Taking time off from play, they took pride in helping the unfortunate families have and enjoy the beauty of a white Christmas. With the cooperation of the entire student body of C. C., contributions to the Christmas baskets were astounding. Money, food, clothing, and welcomed gifts were donated wholeheartedly. The Social Problems Club under the direction of Sister Mary James packed 48 baskets which the parish priests delivered to the needy families.

For Our Tomorrow

One of the largest problems facing His Excellency, Bishop Francis J. Haas, when he took charge of the diocese of Grand Rapids was the congested condition of Catholic Central high school. Bishop Haas, thereupon, deciding that action was necessary, called together a meeting of representatives from all the parishes. Soon after, he launched a campaign coinciding with that of the Sixth War Loan Drive to raise sufficient funds to expand Catholic Central. This plan proved to be a great success for in a short time the amazing sum of $888,610 was realized. In connection with the Bond Drive, the Bishop launched a city-wide Poster and Essay contest. The students who gained recognition for their efforts and who received gifts from His Excellency are shown on the opposite page.

The Espousal of Mary and Joseph

SONNET IN PRAISE OF MARY

*Humbly, to sing her praise I pledge to try — —
To sing what lies within this human heart — —
Although with greater poets must I vie.
And so from worldly interests must I part;
For such a queen that asks of me my praise
There must be poems that fit her heav'nly state.
So thus I bid my soul from sleep to raise
Its slumb'ring spirit and to illuminate
The darkened chambers of my mind with light — —*

*(A light that owes its origin to the flame
Of Virgin Love that warms our spiritual night.)
I bid my soul to help me meet my aim.
And you, O Queen, in flowing robe and veil,
With words from out this human heart, I hail!*

—Richard Guidotti, '45

Feast of the Espousal of the Blessed Virgin Mary (January 23)

Since the death of her father, the Blessed Virgin Mary had been placed under the special protection of the priesthood. When she had attained her fifteenth year, the priests of the Temple thought it advisable to espouse her to a faithful guardian. This proposal of marriage put Mary into extreme affliction, because early in life she had taken the vow of virginity.

The guardians of Mary, disregarding her vow, assembled to choose a worthy spouse for her. Disdaining the advantages of high rank, youth and wealth, they fixed their choice upon a man who was advanced in years, and whose fortune had been absorbed by the religious wars of Judea. This man was Joseph, the Carpenter of Nazareth.

When the choice was announced, Mary obediently reconciled herself to a life of obscurity and painful cares with the humble artisan as her spouse. A divine inspiration revealed to her that Joseph, who possessed treasures of grace and sanctity, would be to her no more than a protector and guardian of her chastity.

The nuptials of the Blessed Virgin were celebrated in a degree of luxury at Jerusalem in Judea.

Mary wore a robe of precious texture, and a long flowing veil that reached to the ground. A garland of myrtle, the symbol of purity, crowned her virginal brow as she sat at the right of Joseph on the nuptial day.

According to Jewish custom, Joseph placed a ring on the finger of his spouse, saying, "Behold, thou art my wife according to the rite of Moses and Israel." Then a cup of wine was presented to the bride and bridegroom. While the married couple put the sacred nuptial cup to their lips, the guests sang praises to God. After this, Joseph poured out the remainder of the wine as a sign of bounty, and sprinkled wheat as a symbol of abundance; then as a token of good-luck, a child broke the cup into fragments.

The nuptial festivities together with a religious ceremony of sacrifice lasted for seven days. The week of the nuptials having expired, Joseph and Mary, accompanied by their relatives and friends, returned to Nazareth in Galilee.

RETREAT, JANUARY 24-26

Three Days With Jesus and Mary

Nine hundred and sixty-six students attended the annual retreat given by the Reverend Fredrick Schulte, C. S. C. beneath the spires of St. Andrew Cathedral on January 24. Upon the completion of the first semester's work, the teachers had finished examining the mental abilities of their pupils; and immediately following, the school offered an opportunity for each student to examine himself spiritually, or to see how he stood before Almighty God, his Creator.

Holy Hour on Friday afternoon, on January 26, brought to a conclusion three days of conferences, prayers, and meditations. At the suggestion of Father Schulte, the retreat was offered for a speedy and lasting peace, and for the men and women in the service of their country.

The Retreat Master opened the annual conferences with the following words: "All comes from God. All must return to God." In regard to the theme, "The Evil of Sin," Father Schulte thoroughly explained the following quotation: "What doth it profit a man if he gains the whole world but suffers the loss of his immortal soul?" He closed the retreat by urging the students to avoid sin and the occasions of sin because since the beginning of time, sin is the greatest catastrophe.

Because of the impossibility to seat comfortably all the students of Catholic Central High in the Cathedral, a retreat was held at the same time, at the West-Side branch, for the 290 students enrolled there. The Reverend Foran, C. S. C., was the retreat master for the West-Side Catholic Centralites.

The Purification

THE HOLY FAMILY

*As dawn doth glorify another day
And streaks of sunshine break the fleecing clouds,
There walks upon a long and rugged way
A family that a heav'nly air enshrouds;
A family to whom God had endowed
The greatest gift that He could give to one — —
The gift is Christ, the heav'nly Father's Son.*

*They go according to the law's decree
To offer back to God His holy Child;
To ransom Him with turtle doves as fee.
Then Holy Simeon says to Mary mild
"The hearts of many men will be reviled
Against thy Son. And woe shall stab thy heart.
And now, O Lord, pray, let my life depart."*

—Richard Guidotti, '45

The Feast of the Purification (February 2)

Candlemas Day or the Feast of the Purification is one of the oldest feasts in honor of the Blessed Virgin. At Rome, in the seventh century, it ranked after the Assumption. It was introduced into the Western Catholic Church by Pope Gelasius in 494 in substitution for the Roman pagan celebration that was licentious and obscene.

According to Mosaic law, forty days after the birth of a male child, the mother was obliged to present her son in the Temple and to offer him to God. After the prescribed ceremonies, she was to redeem her child by offering a lamb, or if poor, two turtle doves as a symbol of purity and gentleness.

As a Jewish mother who had brought forth her first Son, Mary was obliged to comply with this law; but as the Mother of God, who had been miraculously conceived without the least stain of sin, she did not have to heed the rule. Nevertheless, so as not to scandalize the women of Nazareth, Mary, in all humility, obeyed the prescribed law.

The journey from Nazareth to Jerusalem was a tedious one; for the Blessed Virgin carried the Divine Child in her arms. Saint Joseph, carrying the sacrifice, gazed lovingly at the Mother and Child. Curious travelers stopped in awe to look at the tender picture the Holy Family presented, but these people were unaware of the fact that they stood so near the Redeemer of mankind.

During this time, there lived in Jerusalem an aged man named Simeon. The Holy Ghost had revealed to him that he shall not die until he had seen the Savior of the world. Divinely inspired, Simeon entered the Temple, and beholding the Infant, he took Him into his arms, exclaiming: "Now dost Thou dismiss Thy servant, O Lord, according to Thy word, in peace; because my eyes have seen Thy salvation which Thou hast prepared before the face of all people: a light to the revelation of the Gentiles, and the glory of Thy people Israel."

After Simeon returned the Christ Child to Mary's arms, the priest proceeded with the ceremonies of the Purification. The will of the Divine Spirit having been followed, Mary, carrying Jesus, left the Temple with the ever-faithful Joseph at her side.

The Candlemas procession that precedes the Mass on the Feast of the Purification is a symbol of Our Lord as the "Light of the World." The wax of the candle signifies the Virginal flesh of the Divine Infant; the wick of the candle is a figure of His Soul; and the flame represents His divinity.

Omitting no duty through human respect, we, like Mary, should be obedient to the laws of the Church.

Sno-Shuffle

One of the most colorful events of the year at Catholic Central was the senior prom — the traditional "Sno-Shuffle." The great success of the dance is attributed to co-chairmen Joyce Ludwig and Joe Azzarello, with their various committees.

The ball, with all the lads and lassies donned in colorful formals and tuxedos, took place on February 10 in the beautiful Black and Silver room of the Civic auditorium.

Many couples glided gracefully across the floor to the smooth enchanting music of Eddie Koul and his orchestra. Entertainment given by selected seniors added gaiety to the dance.

Though it's past, it will always linger in the hearts and memories of the graduating class of '45 as a night of excitement and pleasure.

The Annunciation

"The Angel Gabriel was sent from God into a city of Galilee, called Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David, and the virgin's name was Mary. And the angel being come in, said unto her: 'Hail, full of grace: the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.'"

—(Luke I:26-28)

VIRGIN QUEEN, MOTHER OF GOD

*Although I fain would sing of roses rare
That blush when Phoebus beams with golden rays
Upon their faces, scarlet tinged and fair;
And though I fain would sing of sylvan ways,
Of silver streams and pulchritude of man,
There seems to be a greater voice that calls — —
A voice that ushers forth from heaven's halls.
It bids me sing the praises of a queen
Who far surpasses all with heav'nly grace.
A woman fair that I have never seen.
(Oh, would that I could gaze upon her face!)
A woman to whom all of nature sings;
A maid whose Son is Christ, the King of kings.*

—Richard Guidotti, '45

The Feast of the Annunciation (March 25)

In a small mountain village in Nazareth, there lived a poor humble girl named Mary. She was the virgin selected by God to become the Mother of His Son — the Mother of the promised Messiah. One day in early spring, while she was absorbed in prayer, the chamber in which she knelt was suddenly filled with a heavenly light.

Gabriel, a chosen messenger of God, was sent to prepare Mary, God's living Temple, for His coming. The angel in all his glory appeared to her and said, "Hail, full of grace; the Lord is with thee; blessed are thou among women." Hearing these words, Mary was deeply troubled.

The stillness of the room was interrupted again by the voice of the angel, who called her by name, "Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found grace with God. Behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and shalt bring forth a Son, and thou shalt call His name Jesus. He shall be great and shall be called the Son of the Most High, and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of David, His Father; and He shall reign in the house of Jacob, forever, and of His kingdom there shall be no end."

Mary's reaction to the angel's greeting was striking; for she was well instructed in Holy Scripture and knew the meaning of the angel's last words. There was one obstacle which prevented her from giving her immediate consent. She had solemnly vowed her virginity to God, and not knowing how the mystery was to be accomplished, she asked, "How shall this be done, because I know not man?" The angel explained the mystery in the following words: "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Most High shall overshadow thee. And, therefore, also, the Holy One which shall be born of thee, shall be called the Son of God."

A deep, profound silence came down on that little room while Mary thought. The angel waited for her consent, because the destiny of all creation depended upon it. Finally, raising her bowed head, in all humility, Mary answered, "Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it done unto me according to thy word."

Hearing these words, the angel departed, leaving Mary alone with her God.

MARCH BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

Basketball Stars

The 1948 cage season was a hard, bitter contest all the way through. Catholic's quintet consisted of Chuck Boggia, Owen Eister, Louis McNamara, Bill Feutz, Gordy Stoddard, Gerry McGovern, Chuck Fischer, Ed Draugelis, Gene Duba, Lyle Morrison, Gene Roguszka, and Casey Polkowski. These twelve boys played a brilliant style of basketball meeting many obstacles and pitfalls. They ended in a fourth place tie with South.

The Peanut Squad fared a little better in their contests finishing second on the heels of the hot co-champions, Christian and South. The second-team five boasts such men as: Bob Tietma, Danny Pobojewski, Mike Rawlson, E. J. Owens, Bob Eddy, Hank Malinoski, Swede Christenson, Ken Duemler, Bob Sullivan, Tom Syrek, Al Szarowicz, Larry Pasback, and Ed Lozan.

Our Lady of Good Counsel

THANK YOU, GOD!

*Thank You, dear God, for the beautiful day
For the breezes that in my hair will play,
For the wide ocean and the babbling brook,
The bright warm sun and the shady nook.
Thank You for the flowers and the birds in the trees,
For our furry friends, and fish in the seas.*

*Thank You for the stars in the heavens bright,
And for letting the day follow fast upon night.*

*Thank You for summer's warmth and
autumn's chill,
For the spring's awakening, for winter's thrill,
For the blue sky and the earth on which we trod,
For everything You've given us, thank You,
God!*

—Virginia Conant, '45

INFANT JESUS

*Oh Infant Jesus, immaculate and pure,
I place my trust in Thee;
I hope that I may see Your Face;
In Heaven, I'd like to be.
Oh Infant Jesus, pure and sweet,
I am Your loving child;
I know You are the King of all,
So make me meek and mild.*

—John Deederly, '45

LOVELY BABY

*Oh lovely Baby dressed in white,
Pray tell me what to do.
Tell me, help me to do right,
Oh lovely Baby dressed in white.
Guide me day and night.
Cheer me when I'm blue.
Oh lovely Baby dressed in white,
Pray tell me what to do!*

The Feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel (April 26)

The glorious feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel, which is celebrated on April 26, derived its title from the picture of a Madonna found in Genazzano, a small village southeast of Rome. The devotion arose from a pious belief that the picture of the Madonna was "miraculously transported from Albania into Italy. In 1727, Pope Benedict XIII instituted the feast in honor of Our Lady, and in 1903, Pope Leo XIII added the title "Mother of Good Counsel" to the Litany of Loreto.

While gazing upon the portrait, one is attracted by the loving child-like embrace of the Divine Infant whose face is tilted upward toward that of His Mother's, pleading as it were for counsel in some grave matter that has touched His tiny Heart. With maternal understanding, Mary looks lovingly upon Him as if a Mother is giving Counsel to her Son, and the Son seems to be inspiring His Mother so that she may diffuse her wisdom to suppliants who come to her for guidance.

Would that Twentieth Century Catholics were better informed in regard to the devotion of Our Lady of Good Counsel. How many perplexing doubts and wearisome hours could be avoided if, when our thoughts are troubled, we would raise our hearts to Our Lady and seek the limitless wisdom that is ever at her disposal.

When problems that can only find their solution in supernatural assistance confront us, our hearts should turn to Mary with this prayer, "Mother, tell me, what am I to do?"

APRIL ACTIVITIES

Left to Right — Lillian Toczylowski, Helen Verlin, Mary Ann Cebelak

The Band

Under the direction of Mr. Herman Johnson, the Band, numbering almost sixty members, enjoyed one of its most successful years at Catholic Central.

While playing at all the football games, the musicians, attired in Navy blue and white uniforms, executed snappy marching formations with numerous classy selections.

Besides offering entertainment at all the athletic events, the Band participated in several patriotic parades and played for the Bishop's High School Development Fund Rally, December 7.

Gala-Nite, the annual festival, sponsored by the members of the Band under the supervision of Sister Mary Gervase and Jack May, chairman, reached the peak of its highest success by netting over $2,000.

The annual concert was presented during the month of April, in the Saint Cecilia auditorium. Robert Stratford was featured as baritone soloist.

The officers of the Band are as follows: Maurice Lillis, president; Graham McDonnell, vice-president; Phyllis Wahlfield, secretary; Thomas Westdorf, treasurer; Thomas Jones, librarian. Senior members are: Jack May, Maurice Lillis, Robert Stratford, Joan Baldini, Ray Walen, Robert Walenga, Thomas Curran, Ray Rettig, James Weldon, and Thomas Mikulenas.

For the second year Catholic Central's band was led by three beautiful drum-majorettes, Lillian Toczylowski, Helen Verlin, and Mary Ann Cebelak, and drum-major, Richard Gavinski. Parading with graceful ease in snappy white uniforms, they added much color to the Band. The majorettes showed great improvement over last year's performance.

"Tention!!!" "Right Face!!!"

These sounds echoed through Catholic Central's gym for a second year as R.O.T.C. Units G and H, under the direction of Corporal Roy Hubsel, fell into line.

The sponsors drilled by Cadet Captain Bernard Deschaine won the Herald Trophy for being the best group in the city. They are as follows: Cadet Captain Diane Short; First Lieutenant Marjorie Schildroth, and Second Lieutenants Margaret Powell, Pat Radliski, Mary Ann Ruthkowski, Joan Norton, Therese Krzyzowski, and Virginia Nowak.

Other officers of Catholic Central's R.O.T.C. Unit are: Cadet Captains Bernard Deschaine, Donald Braun, and William Harring; First Lieutenants John Suchowolec, Don Kozal, and Ray Rettig; and Second Lieutenants Ray School, Eugene Pluhator, Paul Mead and Pat Riley.

Cadet Major Orville Kipen is Representative of the Battalion staff, ably assisted by First Lieutenant John Suchowolec. Cadet Captain Bernard Deschaine is the Representative for the Regimental staff.

Our Lady Help of Christians

MARY, HELP US!

*Oh Help of Christians, hear us
And from thy throne above
Send peace and consolation
And everlasting love.*

*Protect the boys who fight for us
And remedy their pain.
Especially, take care of
The souls of all the slain.*

*To everyone who suffered,
Because of this mad mess,
Bring temporal security
With peace and happiness.*

QUEEN OF PEACE

*Mary, Help of Christians,
Mary, Queen of Peace,
Patroness of the Americans
Make this war to cease!*

*We ask, we beg, we pray to thee
To give us all we need;
We wish to have a world that's free,
To you, Mother of God, we intercede!*

—Louis McNamara, '45

"If we seek grace, let us seek it through Mary; for what she asks, she finds. Never can she plead ineffectually."

—Saint Bernard

Feast of Mary, Help of Christians (May 24)

So great is the tenderness of Mary's maternal heart, that all petitions sent to her are graciously heard. In sorrows and afflictions, one can always look to Mary for comfort, strength, and consolation; for she is our Spiritual Mother who was given to man by God, her only Son, as He hung on the Cross of Redemption.

The love and pity that Mary has for us is so great that she does not always wait for our prayers before giving us aid. Her compassion was shown at the wedding feast of Cana when finding that the wine had failed, and without being requested but moved only by her kind heart, she asked her Son to supply the need, in the perplexed situation, so as not to embarrass the host.

In all distresses, in the struggles against the temptations of the world, the flesh, and the devil, Mary is there to help us. With her generous aid we can overcome evil inclinations and lead a good Christian life; therefore, when in need of assistance of body or soul call on Mary.

In the records of the history of times long past, and those of recent occurrences, we find testimony of the graces and benefits obtained through Mary's intercession. The feasts celebrated by the Church throughout the whole year are but evidences of the gratitude offered to the Queen of Heaven. The Church urges us to have special devotion to Mary and to pay special tribute to her, our greatest advocate. We can give honor to Mary and obtain her aid by saying one of the most beautiful of all prayers — the "Memorare."

"Remember, O most gracious Virgin Mary, that never was it known, that any one who fled to thy protection, implored thy help or sought thine intercession, was left unaided. Inspired by this confidence, I fly unto thee, O Virgin of virgins, my Mother; to thee I come; before thee I stand sinful and sorrowful. O Mother of the Word Incarnate, despise not my petitions, but in thy mercy hear and answer me." Amen.

Our Lady of Sorrows
Heaven

Dear Mother of Sorrows,

We sincerely petition you to comfort the mothers of sons lost in this struggle for freedom and justice. You are the only one to whom they can turn in such a time of grief. Please pour the balm of your sweet consolation into their bleeding hearts, and comfort them in the loss they have sustained; for you understand. You lost your Son who died for the sins of the world. Our boys like other Christs have also made the supreme sacrifice for the sins of man.

O, Mother of Sorrows, open the eyes of the bereaved ones so that they may see with the light of faith. Make them realize the fact that their hero sons' deaths are the beginning of a new life.

Now dear Mary, just a few words in behalf of our Gold Star Heroes. I petition you to accompany them into the Eternal Kingdom. When they stand before the throne of their Almighty God, your Son, intercede for them so that they have not died in vain.

Lovingly,

James Stachowiak, '45

Our Mother of Perpetual Help

Explanation of the Portrait

The unknown artist of this miraculous painting depicts Our Mother of Perpetual Help wearing a dark blue mantle lined with green. Her tunic is red, edged with gold. She carries her Child Jesus in her arms. He is seeking refuge from the instruments of His Passion shown Him by the angels. In His haste, the little Child Jesus almost lost His sandal that hangs loosely by one strap. Above His head are Greek letters meaning "Jesus Christ." On the right of the Blessed Virgin is the Archangel Michael with the lance and sponge in a vase. Greek letters meaning "Archangel Michael" are above his head. The Archangel Gabriel is to the left; he is presenting to Jesus the Cross and the nails. The Greek letters meaning "The Archangel Gabriel," are seen right above his head.

—William Feutz, '45

The History of the Portrait of Our Mother of Perpetual Help (Feast on June 27)

The picture of our "Mother of Perpetual Help" is the work of an unknown artist. It was painted according to the Grecian style in the thirteenth century.

Little is known of the history of the portrait except that it was discovered on the island of Crete, and that for two hundred years the image of Our Mother was venerated as miraculous.

During the Turkish Invasion, a pious merchant brought the picture to Rome. While making the journey, a storm arose and the ship was in grave danger; but the merchant, having faith in his miraculous possession, brought it on deck and told all to pray to Our Lady. Their prayers were answered, and the sea became calm.

Arriving in Rome, the merchant who intended to go on with his journey was stricken with a grave malady. Fearing that death might soon overtake him, he requested his host to care for the picture and to have it exposed for veneration in some church in Rome. Shortly after this, the merchant died, but his wishes concerning the miraculous picture were not carried out. Struck by the beauty of the painting, the host's wife decided to keep it in her home; therefore, the guardian of this treasure, afraid to displease his wife, consented to her proposal.

Our Blessed Mother, wishing to have her image venerated publicly, appeared three times to the Roman — each time requesting him to fulfill the wishes of the deceased merchant. When the Roman told his wife about the apparitions, she laughed at him and paid no heed to his commands. Once more the Miraculous Image appeared to the custodian, saying, "Thou canst not complain of me, for I have warned thee three times, and now, because thou wouldst not carry my Picture out of thy house, thou thyself shalt be carried hence." Shortly after, the Roman was stricken ill and died.

It was not until the miraculous Mother appeared to the Roman widow's daughter that the Blessed Virgin's wish was fulfilled. The location of the Church where the picture was to be placed for veneration was revealed to the daughter, also. Mary wished her image to be kept between the church of St. Mary Major and that of St. John of Lateran in Rome. The only church between these two was that of St. Matthew; therefore, the miraculous picture was installed on March 27, in 1499, during the pontificate of Alexander VI, and was publicly venerated there for three hundred years.

During the French Revolution, the church of St. Matthew was demolished, and the picture of our Blessed Mother was taken by the Augustinians to their convent of Sant Maria in Posterula, where It remained for more than sixty years.

Pius IX, in December 1865, ordered the Picture to be exposed for public veneration in the church of St. Alphonsus. This church was built between the churches of St. Mary Major and St. John. The miraculous picture was carried there in 1866, and it is venerated there even to this day.

JUNE ACTIVITIES

Action at the Track Meet

Quill and Scroll

At the close of school each year, journalists who have had published 120 inches in their school's publications and who stand scholastically in the upper third of their classes, are eligible to enter the "Quill and Scroll" Honor Society.

The students on this year's staffs who have fulfilled these requirements and who have generously contributed to the Blue and White and The Spires are as follows: Left to right: Thomas Erhardt, feature-writer and co-editor of the Blue and White and the Spires; Polly Ann Noble, co-editor of the Blue and White and the Spires; Florence Baura, feature-writer; Richard Guidotti, feature-writer and poet; Gerarda Smigiel, feature-writer, and Patricia Bechtold, feature-writer.

The Final Goal

Class Day was held Monday, June 11, at South High auditorium.

Awards were presented to deserving students and gay music sung by the Mixed Chorus furnished pleasing entertainment for the attending relatives and friends of the graduates.

Then, on that never-to-be-forgotten day of June 14, 1945, two hundred-sixty-four future alumni solemnly proceeded down the long spacious aisle of St. Andrew Cathedral to claim their well-earned diplomas from Catholic Central.

The memorable scene which the students portrayed was both beautiful and picturesque. Their contrasting blue and white gowns were truly symbolic of Our Lady's colors.

His Excellency, Bishop Francis J. Haas assisted by the Rev. Thomas J. Bolger, principal of Catholic Central, presented the diplomas to each graduate.

After the ceremony, solemn Benediction was given, and the "Te Deum" sung by the entire assembly concluded another chapter in the lives of the graduates of '45.

FAREWELL!

*As the day of graduation draws nigh,
We think of those four years gone by —
The friends we've made and will always cherish —*

*The memories that shall never perish.
The "Drag," the "Spires," the "Blue and White,"*

*The fun we had at "Gala-Nite"
Will always linger in our memories
And cheer us in our reveries.*

*As thus we say our sad farewell.
There is a story that words can't tell —
We leave behind a carefree life,
To face a world all torn with strife.*

Our Lady of Mount Carmel

"Receive, my dear son, this scapular of thy Order, as the distinctive sign of my confraternity, and the mark of the privilege which I have obtained for thee and the children of Carmel. It is a sign of salvation, a safeguard in danger, and a special pledge of peace and protection till the end of time. Whosoever dies wearing this shall be preserved from eternal flames."

(Bible)

Collect. —

"O God, Who hast been pleased to honour the Order of Thy most blessed Mother, Mary ever a virgin, with the noble title of Mount Carmel, grant, we beseech Thee, that she whose commemoration we this day celebrate with solemn offices, may ever so surely safeguard us, that we be found worthy to share in that happiness which has no end. Who livest and reignest."

The Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel (July 16)

On July 16, the Church celebrates the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, because according to Carmelite tradition, the Blessed Virgin appeared to Saint Simon Stock on Mount Carmel and gave him a scapular which, according to the promise of the Mother of God, will preserve the faithful wearer from the everlasting fires of hell.

In the time of the Old Testament, Elias, and Elisha, two great prophets of the Hebrews, and their followers, called "Sons of the Prophets," lived in caves on the side of Mount Carmel, a well-known mountain-ridge in Palestine. After the coming of Christ, holy men who wanted to live in peace and solitude and to follow the example of Jesus, lived in these caves. Later, they united and lived under one rule and one superior, and were called Brethren of Blessed Mary of Mount Carmel. During the Crusades, the mountainous regions fell into the hands of unbelievers, the holy men living there fled, some to Europe and others to seek refuge in England.

In 1247, when the first General Chapter of the Order held a meeting in England, Simon Stock, a very holy man, so impressed the other members that he was made Master General of the Order.

When difficulties threatened the existence of the Carmelite Order in Europe, it was only natural for Saint Simon to turn to Mary, because as a youth he had great devotion to her and she had told him that he would one day join an order which she had placed under her special protection. While praying to Mary, therefore, he asked her, as Patroness and Mother of the Order, to take pity on her Carmelite Brothers and to relieve them in their hour of trial.

Solicitous about the welfare of those who seek her protection, Mary heard Saint Simon's prayers. One day on July 16, 1251, just as the sun was rising in the east, Mary, in all her magnificent glory as Queen of Heaven, surrounded by a great multitude of angels in dazzling brilliance, appeared to Saint Simon. In answer to his prayer, she presented him a garment, fashioned after a scapular, and then said, "This shall be a privilege for thee and all Carmelites; whosoever shall die wearing it shall not suffer everlasting fire."

It is not incredible that Mary made this promise to save those who carried her image wherever they went. It is what we would expect a kind, loving, and generous mother to give to her children who carry her image with them every moment of the night and day.

In the thirteenth century, lay people begged the privilege of being buried in the habit of their favorite Order. After Mary's appearance to Saint Simon, lay people who were associated with the Carmelites began to wear the habit, daily. These people joined organizations similar to Guilds. Toward the end of the thirteenth century, nearly every Carmelite Church had a Guild or Confraternity attached to it.

After the Reformation, during which time the Carmelite monasteries were suppressed, the Scapular Confraternities dwindled. The Church, therefore, gave the power to any priest, even though not a Carmelite, to enroll the lay people into the Scapular Confraternity.

Anyone who wears the Scapular, participates in the good works of all the members of the Carmelite Order. He becomes a partner in the great volume of praise that each day ascends from monasteries and convents and from the homes of the lay people.

What wonder then that countless numbers of miracles have accompanied the Scapular devotion! What wonder that soldiers in danger, wish to wear the uniform of the Queen of Heaven! What wonder that the souls of the faithful traveling to their Father's home wish to wear what they firmly believe to be a guarantee of Mary's love.

The feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel was extended to all Christendom by Pope Benedict XIII, in 1726.

MARY, QUEEN OF PEACE

*O Virgin Queen to whom all peoples turn
To seek an answer to their sufferings;
O Gracious Queen, who never, never spurns
These saddened childish hearts, but rather brings
To them the hope that once was theirs, but then
Was drowned within the rising tide of strife;
Ah, Mother dear, to whom we turn again,
Deliver us from death and give us life.
Look down upon us torn by war and sin
And listen to the cries that rent the air.
O Queen, we beg you come and place within
Our hearts the grace that keeps us from despair.
We beg you, Mary, Gracious Queen of Peace,
To have this shed-of-blood and dying cease.*

The Assumption of Mary

Offertory — Mary hath been taken up into heaven; therefore do the angels rejoice; and blessing God, with one voice offer high praise to Him, alleluia.

The Feast of the Assumption of Mary (August 15)

Although Holy Scripture is silent about the death and the assumption of Mary, Saint John Damascene had related his version of it. This report is based on his account of the Holy Mother's privilege.

After Jesus Christ ascended into heaven, Mary remained on earth to aid and to direct the Apostles and Disciples in the propagation of the Catholic faith. Although she longed whole-heartedly to be with her Divine Son, nevertheless, Mary stayed here in obedience to the will of God. For the rest of her life, she consoled herself by visiting the holy places of Palestine where Jesus had suffered and died.

It is related by many authors, including Saint John Damascene, that, before the death of the Blessed Mother, most of the Apostles were miraculously gathered in her room. As the time of Mary's death grew nearer, the Apostles grieved her going, and many of them asked her for her blessing. She extended to them special graces to help them continue with the work they were doing. For most men death is a bitter thought. During life, they become greatly attached to persons and earthly things; at the time of death, they are filled with remorse for their sins; they are uncertain as to their eternal life. For Mary, death held no bitterness. She died free from attachment to this world; she was certain of her eternal destiny; therefore, she died in perfect peace. She had lived a life of purity, of holiness, and of humility. Her death was the union of a lover to her Loved One. As Mary's soul was going to her God, bright lights filled her room and heavenly music seemed to echo from the Celestial Court. The Apostles, filled with sorrow at the loss of God's Mother and their spiritual advocate, reverently transported her body to a sepulchre near Gethsemane. For three days the heavenly music continued, after which time the songs of the angels ceased.

Saint Thomas, the Apostle, who was absent at the time of Mary's death, arrived after she had been buried. Being anxious to see and to venerate the body of the Mother of his Master, he urged the disciples to open the tomb. Awe-struck with amazement at the sight of the empty grave, the disciples witnessed nothing but the winding cloths that were used in embalming the holy body. Surely, a miracle had taken place. Jesus Christ had claimed not only the soul, but also the body of His Blessed Mother. Although the Assumption of Mary is not an article of faith, it is universally believed, by all Catholics, that Mary's holy body was assumed into heaven.

The origin of the feast of the Assumption of Mary is very uncertain. It probably originated in Palestine before 500. In 700, under Sergius I, it was one of the principal festivities in Rome and was celebrated on August 15.

Mary's life and death were privileged ones, but even more rewarded was her assumption and coronation. In compensation for her love of God, for her humility in great privileges, for her purity during her entire life, for the many virtues she had practiced, Mary was united, body and soul, with her Holy Son in the High Court of Heaven.

Senior Class Resume

This is it — the last scene of Act IV. Before the curtain ascends on the final showing, let us, during this intermission muse briefly over the preceding acts.

Act I — — Freshman Year — — 1942

We see before us a mob of bewildered freshies on their first day of school scurrying about, seeking, yet not finding, their respective rooms. They gaze in amazement at the large number of fellow classmates; for they had never thought of coming in contact with so many new faces at one time. But soon they have settled down to a regular routine. With real pleasure, they enjoy their first assemblies in the Cathedral and gym. Their first retreat made an indelible impression on them; for it laid down the principles which enabled them to face life more securely.

Act II — — Sophomore Year — — 1943

Dawn of another school year! With the exception of a few new characters, the cast remains the same. Gaiety dominates this scene. Although the actors are unable to sponsor activities of their own, their enjoyment knows no bounds as they participate in the undertakings of the upperclassmen. For a few moments, the spotlight is centered on Maxine Klein, a Sophomore and the first-prize winner in the Catholic Central Flag Contest.

Act III — — Junior Year — — 1944

Again we see this diversified cast all taking their places under the lights. We see the plucky Junior girls organize the first High School Bond Drive. We see the Junior boys distinguish themselves on the gridiron. They faced success in their every undertaking. Proof of this lies in the never-to-be-forgotten mixers, skating parties, and the all important J-Hop.

Act IV — — Senior Year — — 1945

The increased tempo of the players' activities stir up the excitement in the spectators' minds. The ability to cram the multitude of customary activities into such a short time is a revelation of their skill. Our attention is centered on Gene LeMay, first-prize winner of the Poster contest, and on Noreen Connell, second-prize winner of the Essay contest sponsored by the Bishop to further his High School Development Fund. Our colorful Election Day parade, the dreamy Sno-Shuffle, the impressive "last retreat," pictures, Spies, "drag," and the penalty periods, all create an indelible impression on our book of memories. It is not surprising then, that we note a tear or two in the eyes as the curtain falls.

We now introduce you to the graduates of 1945.

Class Will

We, the students of Catholic Central, class of nineteen-forty-five, this day, being of sound body and mind (most of us, anyway), do hereby bequeath our numerous attributes to the underclassmen:

To Nancy Moriarity, the gay, care-free attitude of her brother Jack.

The cheerleading ability of Bob Polack and Chuck Fischer to Bill Carey and Joe Smith.

The stateliness of Dan Mead to Jim Grady.

The inseparableness of Connie Spina and Ardis Sheldon to Mary Lou Kahler and Shirley Wilson.

Pat Carmody's red tresses to Delores Johnson.

The cute mannerisms of Dorothy Norkus to Mary Jane Host.

The easy, get-together personality of Joan Voorhies to Harriet Dennis.

The pleasing smile of Louise Van Dam to Jean Blair.

The bowling ability of Dick Malmyga to Romie Boruta.

Don O'Hearn's wondrous muscles to Casimir Polkowski.

The cute "lil" bonnets of Pat Bechtold and Virginia Velte to Betty Wright and Therese Grady.

The smiling eyes of Ed Host to Bob Noel.

Joe Ruschman's coaching ability to Danny Pobjewski.

Arlene Zackerzecki's clubby clothes to Margaret Powell.

Joyce Ludwig's letter-writing ability to Dorothy Walcott.

The quick blush of Dorothy Noel to Shirley Peters.

The shuffling walk of Dick Peters to Dick Chulski.

Whereby, having disposed of all our personal effects, we do hereby affix our signatures to this, the last will and testament of the said class of forty-five, and appoint "Judge" Heyer as sole executor of this document.

The Spring Song

Exult

The snows have fled away;

Exult!

For spring has come today!

With rushing streams

And golden dreams

Of violets blue,

And sparkling dew;

With cheering notes

As anecdotes

To stimulate

The joys of late —

Lest perhaps they fall

And drink the gall,

And breathe the air

Of black despair.

I bid thee hold!

For yet untold

Are many stories

Of nature's glories.

And now before you go along,

I bid thee hear the sweet spring song:

Now hark ye to the birds on high

Flying through the spring's fresh sky.

And look up, — from that heavenly
glee;

The sunshine beckons you and me.

And see the monarch butterfly,

Flutt'ring 'gainst the azure sky?

Heav'nly blissfulness — heav'nly glee,

Teaching the spring song to you and
to me.

What, you ask, is the springtime's song?

Come and I'll tell you — Come walk,
Come along.

The song of the spring

Is the most joyful thing

That ever before was heard.

It's the song of the breeze

As it sighs to the trees,

It's the chirp of the new-born bird.

It's the song of glee

Of the glad and free

Of the golden sunset hours;

And the words of this song,

This glorious song,

Are found in the free, sylvan flowers.

Now — go your way

This fine spring day —

And laugh, and sing and cheer;

But stop to listen,

Yes, stop to listen —

That song of spring you'll hear.

Class Prophecies

As o'er life's weary path we trod
Aided and guided and blessed by God,
We wonder what tomorrow brings —
Both happy and unhappy things.
We hope and pray that all may be
A garland of roses for you and me;
Yet only God knows what's in store
For you and me, forevermore.
Still, we will endeavor, by hook or by crook
To make up some prophecies for this book.
Bathing the baby or pushing a plow —
Where will YOU be ten years from now?

Utilizing the strange, mystic powers
conferred upon us by Sim Ala Dab,
Master of Hindu Sorcery, we are able to gaze into the misty future and find what Providence holds in store for the graduates of '45. Fame and fortune, we are pleased to note, have not overlooked them. As we watch, the clouds vanish slowly, and we are able to distinguish the features of several prominent classmates:

Gerre Smigiel, glamorous Powers model, parading the very latest creations direct from Paris.

Mary McPhillamy and Tom Curran, honey-moonning at Niagara Falls.

Florence Baura, head of the naval correspondents in Washington, D. C.

Agnes Wright and Dick Guidotti, appearing as guest artists on the Hit Parade.

Ron Kasprzak, winning honors as America's foremost tennis player by defeating Bill
Tilden, 60-0.

Pat Miller and Shirley Holt, playing the leads in a popular Shakespearean revival on Broadway.

Virginia Budnik and Mary Lou Kubiak, secretaries, struggling amid the turmoil of a large business office.

Louis McNamara and Veronica Kobryn, now
Mr. and Mrs., very happy in their little vine-covered cottage in the country.

Ray Rettig, playing first trumpet for the Salvation Army Band.

Ruth Venekase and Dick Mysliwiec, teaching
Dick, Jr., the technique of playing winning football.

Dick Weber, student at Michigan State Col-

Scenes in the Life of Mary's Child

CHRISTMAS

Christmas Day, the birth of Christ,
Our Savior and our King,
Brings joy and peace to many hearts
While all His praises sing.

In a lonesome lonely stable
The sweet Christ Child was born;
Joy filled Mary and Joseph's hearts
That first glad Christmas morn.

To the manger of an Infant
All angels came from Heaven;
All eager to behold the Child
That unto man was given.

And as they knelt adoring
That first glad Christmas morn,
Their hearts were filled with gladness,
For Christ the Lord was born.

—Thomas Curran, '45

GOOD FRIDAY

A Friday!
'Twas a Friday in the early spring
When the death of Jesus Christ took place.
The trial over,
Christ's sentence had been announced.
First, thorns were placed upon His head,
And blood trickled down like drops of rain.
Then the scourging took place.
The blows were powerful.
Some of the flesh was torn off with every lash.

And He suffered much.
The Cross that had then been given Him to carry,
Was heavy, indeed!
As He dragged it along for miles,
It cut into His bruised shoulders, and He fell thrice.

Up to Calvary He dragged His burden
Till He reached the very top.
The soldiers stripped Him of His clothes,
And laid Him on the cross.
Jesus obeyed every command.
He stretched His hands and feet
When handled roughly;
And they nailed Him to the cross.
The executioners raised the suffering Christ
and

For three hours Jesus hung in derision.
Then He died at the third hour for all mankind.

—Robert Czarniecki, '45

THE RESURRECTION

As the sun lifted the veil of night
and sent its golden beams sliding down to meet the earth,

As men about the world awoke from rest to greet the new-born day,

Another One, far greater than all others awoke from sleep;

But His was the long and silent
sleep of death.

For three days no light reached His eyes while sealed within the sepulcher
He lay;

But this morn, as children dressed
for play,

The stone was rolled aside and
Christ came forth in all His glory.

Christ, the Creator of all men arose
this wondrous Easter Day.

MARY, STAR OF THE SEA

I stand aboard my spiritual ship and look Across the darkened sea of worldly strife;

*And now I contemplate the course I took
When I first boarded on this ship of life.
The way I go is that of every man —
Across a deep that surges wild with waves —*

*The way that God has put into His plan
In order He might test the souls He saves.*

*But as I say, the sea is death to all
Who fail to keep their course and sail afar*

To sink beneath the waves when some great squall

Of sin disturbs their ship. But look — behold that star!

*'Tis Mary, our Mary! Our Star to lead
the way*

From blackest night unto a new-born day.

—Richard Guidotti, '45

WINTERTIME

*The winter winds whirl through the air;
The snowflakes glide to earth;*

*While winter's spectres everywhere
Enjoy their winter mirth.*

*The snow-capped trees upon the hill
With tall and stately grace,*

*Look o'er the field and frozen mill
To smile upon my face.*

*While thus I stand in admiration,
I say a prayer that all creation*

*Will always have its Royal charm;
That God protect it from all harm;*

*That there shall always be a wintertime
To soothe this weary heart of mine.*

A Word of Thanks

As the first breath of spring hovers in the air, and the outside world has just begun to blossom into new, radiant colors, we, the staff members of the yearbook, close the door of the Blue and White room for the last time. As the lock falls into place, we suddenly realize that a part of us has been left in that room, forever. We shall always remember the merry times we had, trimming snapshots, revising compositions, and mounting photographs — all will linger for a long time in our memories. And how can we ever forget Polly Noble, patiently mounting pictures whose edges always want to curl; Pat Bechtold and Norma Schippers, coming down for assignments and then dashing frantically up the stairs, only to be late again for mixed chorus; Gerre Smigiel and Tom Erhardt, feverishly wracking their brains over the class prophecies; Florence Baura, struggling with scissors that wouldn't cut straight, and Sister Rosalina, urging all to meet the deadline so that the students could enjoy an early issue of the SPIRES. Is it any wonder that we send this book out with tear-dimmed eyes and mournful faces?

To the Senior and Underclassmen officers, to the local typists, to the countless number of students who willingly contributed both time and effort for the success of this book, to Versluis Studio for the many services rendered and the photography displayed herein, and to Donald Wieland and Bob Stratford for their photographic skill, we extend our sincere appreciation and everlasting gratitude. Finally, to all who have purchased a copy of this edition of the SPIRES, we extend our hopes and desires that they may receive as much enjoyment browsing through these pages as we received compiling them into a bound volume of youthful reminiscences of our high school days.

Now just a parting word to our beloved classmates: Seniors, as years roll by and you get lonesome for good old Catholic Central, retire to your rooms, pick up the '45 SPIRES, and re-live the scenes depicted between its covers; but don't forget to whisper an "Ave" for your classmates, friends and teachers, who have made it possible for you to claim C. C. as your Alma Mater.

Music Graduates of 1945

Joan Voorhies --- Margaret Cuncannan

"I am the incense upon which prayer floats to heaven. I am the instrument of God — I AM MUSIC."

Joan Voorhies, '45, was presented in her piano graduation recital June 9, at the St. Cecilia hall.

Joan has been accompanist for the Mixed Chorus for the past three years. She has also generously lent her talents for many performances as soloist.

Her program is as follows:

Nocturne in E minor	Chopin
Warsaw Concerto	Addinsell
Witches Dance	MacDowell
Fantasia in C minor	Bach
Polonaise in E minor	MacDowell
Le Matin — piano duo	Chaminade

The Strife of Life

The golden dreams of youthful days have passed;
 And now the weird night-mares which we dread,
 have fallen on our minds and souls as shades
 of evening fill the heav'nly azure sky.
 No more does life's frail ship go sailing on a moonlit bay, surrounded by the peace and love of youth, and angels' melodies; —
 But with one stroke of time, the Ship of Life goes whirling out into the sea of hate and strife — into temptations of another sort; into the worries of the man.
 And then the wind and rain and tempest comes.
 We are assailed from every side by waves
 of lust and crime; of hate and avarice.
 We're tossed about upon this mighty sea
 as if we were but petals of a flower;
 Which in reality we are; the petals
 of the flowers from the garden of
 Our Lord — Who nourished us with His Precious Blood.

And then the tempest ceased — and then the dawn.
 The sun-rays shine once more upon the sea.
 Oh, what a sight must meet the Maker's eyes!
 The Ships of Life are scattered here and there;
 And many, yes, so many Ships have sunk
 beneath the waves of life's tempestuous sea.
 But look o'er there! Beyond the sea of life!
 And hark! Oh hear that melody sublime!
 'Tis loud; 'Tis song! — The wanton Paradise!
 Oh, look again! Beyond the night and storm of manhood's sea there lies the Port of Life,
 and in that port are anchored to the wharf
 the Ships which overcame the storm.
 Still, there are some that sail amid the mist
 that hovers o'er the entrance of the Port.
 But soon the mist will lift, and then the Ships
 will sail into the port of God's domain.

—Richard Guidotti, '45

Margaret Cuncannan

Margaret Cuncannan, another promising young artist, was also graduated from Catholic Central School of Music. She is a June graduate of Mount Mercy Academy. The interpretation of her selections for the recital gave proof of her high musical attainment.

Her program is as follows:

Sonata Op 31 No. 3 — Allegro
Movement	Beethoven
Valse Brillants	Chopin
Minstrels	Debussy
Gondoliera	Moszkowski
Waltz in D flat	Mokrejs

Junior Class Resume

The Junior students at Catholic Central began their school-year with a full schedule of activities with four capable leaders, namely, Dorothy Walcott, Harriet Dennis, Gerry McGovern, and Ed Draugelis. They launched the first of their many activities by sponsoring an open mixer. The dance was held in the school gym and Vincent Puzar's orchestra did the "honors." The success of this dance encouraged the making of plans for future dances of this type as entertainment for the students.

Among other social gatherings, the class held a skating party in the spring. The main purpose of the party was to raise funds for the annual J-Hop given in May. It was attended by many, and resulted in a huge success.

The Junior year was spotlighted by the individual accomplishments of several students. Jack Donnelly won first prize in the Bishop's Essay contest while Donald Braun, Nancy Moriarity, and Maureen McCarty received honorable mentions.

Junior students were also prominent as staff members of the Blue and White. Tom Farrell, Bill Carey, Roman Boruta, Jim Murphy, and Dorothy Zeilbeck contributed to the fine success of this publication.

In the field of athletics, the Juniors also excelled. Seven of the class gained football letters and six won their monograms in basketball. Standouts in this field were: Casey Polkowski, who received a second-team berth on the All-City selection in football, while Chuck Boggiano gained high-point honors in the city basketball race.

Probably the most important undertaking of the year was the high goal of achievement which the class planned to attain. It was agreed that everyone should co-operate to have the name of the class held in highest regard by the faculty and fellow-students.

The class had chosen for its motto, "Nothing Comes From Nothing" — an expression containing a challenge as well as sound advice. This motto, which merits sincere attention, might easily be inserted into one's every-day-way-of-life because one gets out of life what he puts into it — nothing more and nothing less.

The class flower is the ivy which is symbolic of true friendship. As the years go by, the class hopes that each friendship made in school will be at one time or another renewed and strengthened.

Class Motto
We Dare to Be Different

Sophomore Class Resume

We are the sophomores of Catholic Central. Last year as freshmen, we stood on the side-lines, learning by example; this year, we lead scholastically.

With the motto "We Dare To Be Different" inscribed on a blue and silver standard, we exerted our utmost efforts in every field for the glory of Catholic as well as for our class.

Our serious side is prominent scholastically, and as evidence, together with the West Side sophs, we topped the Mid-Semester Honor Roll with seventy-five representatives.

All through the year, the sophomore boys have supported well balanced teams in every sport. They are now developing, so that in 1947, they will be qualified to win another State Championship. The girls put on a rousing pep assembly before the Union game, thus inspiring our boys to "bring home the bacon."

Between the Beanie and Candy Booths, the sophs contributed to the success of Gala-Nite. As a result, Paula Lovell became first-place winner in the Popularity Contest.

At the Amateur Performance, the sophs were represented by three talented girls: Misses Mary Lou Donahue, Mary Ann Huizingh, and Tammy Wilcox-Rainer. Christmas season found all, busy as bees, filling gift-baskets for the needy. Christmas was made more blessed as a result, for they knew their happiness was being shared with others.

Emily Kowalinski carried off the first prize in the Bishop's Essay contest entitled "Why A Catholic High School Education?" Thomas Leonard captured second prize, and Therese Schmitt, Tammy Wilcox-Rainer, and Robert Poterack received honorable mention. The class is also proud of the fact that Robert Poterack, one of its members, was honored by being chosen to illustrate the twelve feasts of the Blessed Virgin found between the covers of the '45 Spires.

At Retreat, the Pious attention of all enriched them spiritually; it was an experience never to be forgotten.

These are the outward signs of the Sophomore Class Spirit. Because of it none will ever forget their sophomore year. May it ever remain as a symbol of loyalty to Catholic Central.

—Tammy Wilcox-Rainer, '47

Dedication to Mary

Last year we were the youngsters;
They called us Freshmen then;
But in just one year we showed all
We can be leaders of men.

We've chosen for our motto
"Different We'll Dare to Be."
We'll live up to that Sophomore pledge
With true sincerity.

In silver bright and Mary's blue
Our colors now we show
Expressing love and loyalty
In all the things we know.

They call us now the Sophomores
Of the year of forty-seven.
Our class we dedicate to you,
Oh Mary, Queen of Heaven!

Freshman Class Resume

September 6, 1944 marks a memorable day in the annals of Catholic Central high school for a group of one hundred and ninety-four curious, half-frightened freshies as they entered the portals of Catholic Central for the first time.

After the usual preliminaries, we were assigned to our Home Rooms where we were made most welcome.

The next few days were days of utter confusion only known to freshmen. Under the skillful supervision of the faculty, we resumed our studies in earnest, and worked with clock-like precision to attain a goal set for us at Catholic Central.

What a thrill each activity held for us as freshies, and it must have been a source of amusement to the upper classmen. Besides participating in the school dances, Gala-Nite and sports, we also had our own activities.

We are honored to think that this is the first year that freshmen have been in the Glee Club, were chosen majorettes, and have their own section in the SPIRES.

Determined to follow in the footsteps of the upperclassmen, we, too, held election for class officers. Our choice fell to the following: Jack Miller as president, Frank Reilly as vice-president, Kenneth McKenna as secretary, and Robert Mooney as treasurer. The freshman girls elected Madelyn Briggs as their president, Ann Nachtegall as vice-president, Patricia Sullivan as secretary, and Donna Steiner as treasurer.

The school year was made even more pleasant because of the good will and patience of our teachers, religion instructors, and our kind principal. They have made everything interesting, entertaining and easily understandable.

We are sure that sometime in the future, we shall look back at our first year at Catholic Central with pride and joy, and we shall feel that we did the job to the best of our ability.

West-Side Catholic Central Resume

Are you curious to know about the seniors of 1948? Then read the account of their first high school year.

Their mutual thought and aim at the beginning of the school year, was to make West Catholic Central one of the finest schools in the city. Through their co-operation and accomplishments, they have in most part achieved their goal.

As freshmen will, they faithfully patronized dances, football and basketball games. They participated successfully in the Bishop's Bond Drive, the Poster-Essay contest, consecration to Mary and the annual retreat.

For class colors they chose crimson to implant in their minds a high state of nobility, and white, to remind them to be always pure.

Because the lily-of-the-valley symbolizes the freshmen in many details, it was their choice of a class flower. Their delicate blossom, humbly concealed by large leaves, represents the freshmen, overpowered by the upperclassmen.

United in all activities, aiming for perfection, eager to please all, they hope to build by a Catholic education, characters that are firm foundations for success.

The sophomores of the West Side branch, handicapped in some of their activities by the separation from the main Catholic Central, have displayed wonderful enthusiasm in planning and undertaking many new activities. Never a class to be balked, the sophs have built themselves a fine reputation for initiative and capability.

In addition to the numerous parties and class entertainments, the sophomores sponsored two school dances, the proceeds of which were given to the Bishop's High School Development Fund, along with an extra $25 bond.

The sophs, who are an ambitious set, have many plans as to what they will do when they are reinstated at the main branch of Catholic Central. Among them are many prospects for future football, basketball and track stars, as well as capable leaders who will guide their classmates in social and mental activities.

"Hats Off!" to the sophomores of West Catholic Central!

Character Is the Cornerstone of Success

To all the readers of the Spires of 1945, we at the Annex send our greetings.

Because of the ever mounting enrollment at Catholic Central it was found necessary last September to look for additional space in some other part of the city. Father John Maksymowski, Pastor of St. Adalbert parish, graciously offered the Most Reverend Bishop the whole top floor of his beautiful school - so here we are, all of us, 126 freshmen, 162 sophomores, seven School Sisters of Notre Dame, two Sisters of St. Francis, Rosemary in the office, Father John McGee and myself. And although the river is between us, yet we are deeply conscious of the fact that we are all one Catholic Central - one in heart, one in mind and one in affection. Until the day dawns when new and commodious facilities shall be provided, we shall carry on in our temporary set-up doing what Catholic Central has so ably done for some forty years - providing, to the best of our ability, Catholic education for the Catholic boys and girls of Grand Rapids.

Dear Tom,

I've decided not to put it off any longer so here I sit racking my brain, which isn't hard because there's not much brain to rack.

Our friendship has meant a great deal to me and it always will. At times I know I have been very inconsiderate, and you have always been most gracious about it. Sometimes I feel, in fact I know I am undeserving of you.

You're one grand person, and I know you will never stop being that way. God has blessed you with that wonderful trait to make and keep friends wherever you go.

Before I finish I want to thank you for all the swell times I've had with you. I hope our friendship is a long and lasting one and that all our hopes come true.

May God always be with you and guard you in your work —
I'll always
